

Photo by Snyder Photography

Front row (from left): Kevin Slusher, general manager, Windsor Jewelers; Rob Simon, president, Windsor Jewelers; Gayle Anderson, president and CEO, Greater Winston-Salem Chamber of Commerce; Rodessa Mitchell, vice president of education and membership, Greater Winston-Salem Chamber of Commerce. Top row (from left): Jill Atherton, vice president of economic and community development, Greater Winston-Salem Chamber of Commerce; Ron Stephens, director of marketing, Twin City Quarter; Jen Prpich, general manager, Winston-Salem Marriott; Steve Kenney, president, QC Engraving.

Chamber salutes Windsor Jewelers

The Twin City Quarter and the Greater Winston-Salem Chamber of Commerce recently presented their Salute to Business Award to Windsor Jewelers. Kevin Slusher and Rob Simon accepted the award recently at a special presentation luncheon at Twin City Quarter.

The Salute to Business honors an outstanding contributor to the business community each month. It is administered by the Greater Winston-Salem Chamber of Commerce, the Twin City Quarter, QC Engraving and the Winston-Salem Journal.

Rob Simon founded Windsor Jewelers in downtown Winston-Salem in 1986. The store is named after the Duke and Dutchess of Windsor and their Crown Jewel Collection. When the store opened, its concept was a new one in that it promoted brands that had no representation in North Carolina at the time — David Yurman, Charles Krypell and Tag

Heuer were some of the first. Since that time, Windsor has been awarded some very prestigious brands with North Carolina exclusives such as Patek Philippe and Panerai watches.

Windsor is very proud of the professional staff it has assembled over the years and strives to provide the most compelling care to all who enter its doors. The staff stays committed to product training, and it is their pleasure to deliver more than is asked, with the goal of making every interaction with customers a memorable and extraordinary experience. All are welcome at Windsor Jewelers whether someone has a jewelry repair, custom job or wants to buy a piece of jewelry for $50 or $5,000.

Windsor has supported many nonprofits over the years and recently received the honor of the Arts Council's coveted Volunteer of the Year Award and the Community Award from the Humane Society.

Presented as a public service by the

WINSTON-SALEM
JOURNAL